Attacked by a Ferocious Dog.

While Owen Biggins, the old utility man at the water works, was at work at Frey's quarry Wednesday he was set upon by a ferocious bull dog, belonging to a colored man named Young, which had been left untied and was sleeping among the weeds in tie, the ring was turned over to Mr. Carman. the quarry. Leonard's View of his Responsibility. On being told that the effect of third partyism could only be "to defeat the party which embraces a large preponderance of the temperance people of the state," Mr. Leonard replies: "I will do right. I am not responsi-ble for consequences." Does he not know that the moral quality of an act is often measured by the legitimate consequences of the act? And if the result of this third party movement shall be to defer and put off proper temperance legislation, can be then say that he incurs no responsibility in this matter? And let bim note an admonition of the late Dr. Wheedon: "That it is not always the stricter side of a moral question that is right.

AND STILL THEY COME.

Two More Hiegitimate Children at the In-

On August 15 this paper published an account of a young woman named Mary Fears. of Detroit, who had come to this city to give birth to an illegitimate child. She had stopped at the American house but when her condition was learned she was sent to the Infirmary. Last night she gave birth at the Infirmary to twins, both boys. When she first came, she refused to give the name of her lover, saying that he was a poor laboring man in Detroit and bad sufficient trouble on his hands already. She still tells the same story and has never breathed a word that would lead to the identification of the father. The poor girl seems to have no friends to aid ber, and it is probable that the little money which she had when she came was given her by the father of the children born Wednesday night. The infirmary is growing rather full of waifs.

IMPROMPTU WEDDING.

A Young Woman Captures an Unwilling

Hosband by the Squire's Assistance.

This morning a hasty wedding was per formed by 'Squire Rightmeyer, which was the climax to a long story of reckless love. George Van Hook, the bridegroom, is a young colored man who drives a dray and does odd jobs about the depot. The bride is a young colored woman about nineteen years old, named Katle Saunders, who works as a domestic. Along in March last the two saw s good deal of each other and their youthful passion overcame their discretion. Virtue wept and beauty sighed, but headstrong cupid had his way, and a peck of trouble has been the consequence. When the young woman discovered that she was enciente about the last of June she went to Van Hook and told him of her trouble but he seemed to consider it a matter of no consequence, and was inclined to let her bear her burden of shame and sorrow as best she could. When she saw that he would not willingly marry her she took legal steps to compel him and went to Squire Stout with her trouble. On July the 'squire issued a warrant for his arrest on a charge of bastardy, and Constable Brown When he saw that the girl meant business he had an interview with her and persuaded her to withdraw the suit. promising to marry her within four months She was foolish enough to believe him and all proceedings were annulled, Van Hook paying the costs of the suit. All wentsmoothly enough until a day or two ago the girl heard that Van Hook was preparing to skip town. The story was confirmed in her mind by the fact that his attention to her had become very slight of late. She determined to take time by the forelock and checkmateany such move on his part. This time she went to Squire Rightmyer and filed another affidavit against her negligent lover for bastardy. A warrant was issued and Van Hook was again arrested by Constable Brown this morning. He was taken by surprise, but tried again to stave the wedding off for a couple of months. However, the girl was not to be persuaded so easily this time and Van Hook was compelled t make the best of the situation or go to jail, Naturally he preferred the former. A license was procured and he was married just as he was, in his working clothes. The wedding was an extremely quiet one, not even the relatives or more intimate friends receiving

Low Bridge

This morning a serious socident occurred at Myers livery stable. While the assistant of the sanitary marshal was hauling out a dead horse he attempted to drive under a beam in the barn and was caught between the beam and his seat, which was, fortunately, a spring seat or he would have been killed. As it was he was seriously injured internally. The stablemen came to his assistance at once and rescued. him from his perilous position. He was taken into Dr. Rodgers' office where his injuries were attended to.

Attempted Burglary.

About 2 o'clock this morning Officers Mills and Condron discovered a light in the cellar of Philip Schmidt's grocery on the corner of Plum and Main street. Going closer they found that a burglar was within, who had gained an entrance by a coal hole at the side and was trying to make his way up stairs They began calling to awaken the proprietor and in the meantime the burglar got out at the tront door and skipped. He carried away nothing.

About a Ring.

In this morning's paper a brief note was made of a case of false pretenses that would probably develop today. About four weeks ago Frank W. Neill, a young shoemaker residing at 38 Clitton avenue, came into Carman's jewelry store, on Limestone street, and purchased a ring worth $6. He said his brother-in-law ewed him some money and he would be able to pay it soon, He has never come near the store since. Last Tuesday Mr. Carman told Officer Rizer of the matter and it was found that Neill had no money nor resources to pay for the ring. However he turned it over to the officer saying he would get the money for it today, This afternoon the officer went to him again, and as he still had not the wherewith to set-

Slogging Match. [From Morning Edition.]

The sparring match at Satalia's hall, Dayton, Tuesday night, between McAlpin's combination and two men taken down by Bradley, was attended by about 200 men. Before the matches of the evening several local lights battered each other with the gloves without much science. At nine o'clock Paddy Norton appeared against young Bradley, of Springfield. The set-to was of three rounds, in each of which the men battered at each others' faces without an attempt to guard off blows. Occasionally a parry or a dodge would be made, but the rule dodge would be made, but the rule was to slug. Jim Robison, the colored heavy weight, who is better known as the Black Diamond, then appeared against Tom McAlpin. The bout was simply an exhibition, preparatory to the evening seven. evening's event. At half-past nine the Black Diamond appeared against Fell, and showed his superiority in every way. The black man his a powerful man, with considerable science, and Fell went at him like a threshing ma-chine, but rolled off like water on a duck's back. Robinson played with him, tapping him occasionally with his left and ther his right. At one time he reached out and caught him by the back of the head and pulled him to him, and showed how power-less the white man was. The four rounds were fought without a knockout, and Robinson was declared the winner.

A sad accident which proved fatal befel the family of Peter Knott, who lives about onehalf mile north of Pitchin, on Wednesday. it appears that the children were in the wagon to which was hitched the family horse and a colt. They were out in the field and one of the children struck the colt with a switch, which frightened the colt and caused a runaway. The lines broke in the hands of the driver and the children were thrown out, but all escaped injury except Laura, who was crushed beneath the wheels, and only lived about one-half hour after the accident. The sympathy of the entire neighborhood is with the afflicted family.

CANON FARRAR INTERVIEWED.

Forthcoming Visit to America.
[From Morning Edition.]
LONDON, Sept. 2.—The Rev. Dr. Frederick W. Farrar, canon and archdencon of Westminster, who is about to start for a two months' tour of America, granted an interview to a correspondent yesterday at th little village of Yowya, Wales. The famous divine and author has been quietly resting for a few days at this obscure but picturesque retreat, perched high among the Cambrian hills, and recuperating from his city labors He appeared to be in splendid health and spirits, and he said:

"I anticipate my visit to the United States and Caneda with the greatest interest and pleasure. I am booked to sail from Liverpool for Quebec on the steamer Sardinian, which leaves next Thursday. I expect to devote one week to Quebec and Mentreal. Then will travel lessurely westward, stopping a points, and occupying, perhaps, a week on the way to Chicago, where I will arrive probably on September 28th. I will be able to make only a short stay in Chicago, but there are so many points of interest in that wonderful young giant among cities that I shall try to arrange another visi in October. Not later than September in October. Not later than deptendent 20 I must hurry eastward, for I am announce i to make the opening address of the session of the John Hopkins University at Baltimore on October 1. Next I am to deliver three lectures on theology to stu-dents in Philadelphia, and thence I will go to Washington. I am invited to attend the church congress at New Haven, and after-ward to become the guest of Cyrus W. Field at New York, and of the Rev. Philip Brooks at Boston. I shall try to accept all these invitations. My plans for the remainder of the trip are unsettled, and will depend entirely upon the amount of time which I find at my disposal. I shall, however, feel disappointed it I am unable to pay suitable visits to that great trio of western cities, Cincip asti, St. Louis and Chicago.
